Physics is her biggest love. As a young child, she built an aeroplane by herself and recently she received a job offer from NASA. Sabrina is one of the most promising scholars* of her generation. Not bad at just 25 years old, is it?

Sabrina Pasterski

- Sabrina Gonzalez Pasterski was born in Chicago on 3rd June 1993.
- She's the first person in her family to have been born in the US. Her parents are from Cuba.
- Twice (in 2015 and 2017) she appeared in the list of 30 under 30 (30 exceptional* young people under 30 years old) by Forbes magazine.
- She doesn't use social networks (Facebook, Twitter or Instagram), but she has her own site – physicsgirl.com – where she publishes her research and the articles that have spoken about her over the years.

The new Einstein

Sabrina graduated in physics at MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) in Boston with top marks*, and then she went to Harvard, one of the most prestigious universities in the world. She studies some of the most fascinating, but also the toughest* subjects regarding physics such as black holes, gravity and space and time. She's considered to be the heir* of one of the greatest scientists of all time - Albert Einstein.

Before her, Einstein and Stephen Hawking, the genius* astrophysicist and cosmologist studied the Universe and its rules. And these two extraordinary scientists are her role models. Professor Hawking regularly read Sabrina's research and wrote about it in his writings. Some people think that Sabrina will be able to make fundamental new discoveries that will change our idea of the universe.

Flying with Sabrina

When she was 14 years old, her biggest passion was flight. So she built a prototype* of an aeroplane, a small aircraft* with an engine that functioned perfectly. «It's for my dad», she said, but two years later she flew the aeroplane herself, above Lake Michigan, becoming the youngest person to 'fly' an aircraft that was built by herself.

At the time, Sabrina uploaded her aircraft project on YouTube and the video got more than a million views.

Amazon or NASA?

NASA has already offered her a job, but Jeff Bezos, founder of Amazon and businessman has also made her a proposal*. He contacted her to involve her in his space exploration programme called Blue Origin. But for now, however, Sabrina continues to study and to do research far from the spotlight* with humility, patience, dedication and maximum concentration!

IN THE MIRROR

Every day Sabrina works with determination trying to go beyond her limits and in some way also the limits of the universe. Here are her words.

For many years I've been trying to go beyond my limits and in some way also the limits of the universe. Here are my words. The answer is on page 15.
